

The Daily Market Report

PORTLAND, May 4.—Dealers in country dressed meats reported veal moving a trifle better than for the past few days, but with no improvement in the trade sufficient to advance prices. The arrivals thus far this week have not been quite so heavy as those of a week ago, and this to some extent accounts for the improvement.

Pork was active and strong at the quotations that have ruled for a week or more, and there were no surplus stocks in any quarter.

Poultry of all sorts, excepting Springs, was slow, and the outlook is for lower prices before the end of the week.

The egg market showed little or no change from yesterday. Quotations ranged from 24 to 25 cents, but with no demand for Oregon on the Sound the market was none too strong.

Late reports on the street to the effect that dealers had paid as high as $2 a hundred for fancy potatoes in carload lots were confirmed today and it was said also that they would freely pay this price, or perhaps a trifle better, for good stock remaining unsold. The remnant of the Oregon crop is now practically all in the hands of dealers, and the spuds they have taken on lately are steadily going south, where the demand is stiffening.

There was a fair demand for all fruits today, though the trade was not quite so brisk as yesterday. Moderate shipments of strawberries were received, the best Florins going readily at $1.50 to $1.60 a crate and good Los Angeles berries at $1.35 to $1.50. There were a few Oregon berries today, but they were not such as to bring better prices than the California offerings. Dealers look for light consignments of good Oregon berries about the end of the week.

Oranges moved well today at the last quotations and the market was firm. Valencia and Mediterranean sweets will soon be coming in freely. The city creameries today announced a decline from 27 to 24 cents a pound on standard butter, a slightly heavier cut than had been expected, and some of them expressed the belief that the low level for the season has been reached. Heavy production in the dairy districts of the coast generally was of course responsible for the decline.

There was no change in the cheese situation today. Stocks in the hands of dealers are still light, and new receipts are worked off about as fast as they come in.
